

The Versions of Us

by Laura Barnett

About the Book

In one moment, two lives will be changed forever...and forever...and forever.

The one thing that's certain is they met on a Cambridge street by chance and felt a connection that would last a lifetime. But as for what happened next... They fell wildly in love, or went their separate ways. They kissed, or they thought better of it. They married soon after, or were together for a few weeks before splitting up. They grew distracted and disappointed with their daily lives together, or found solace together only after hard years spent apart.

With THE VERSIONS OF US, Laura Barnett has created a world as magical and affecting as those that captivated readers in ONE DAY and LIFE AFTER LIFE. It is a tale of possibilities and consequences that rings across the shifting decades, from the '50s, '60s, '70s and on to the present, showing how even the smallest choices can define the course of our lives.

Discussion Guide

Introduction

A young woman named Eva is riding her bicycle in Cambridge one day when she crosses paths with Jim, a handsome young law student. It is a moment that will change both of their lives in vast and unexpected ways. THE VERSIONS OF US offers three variations of Eva and Jim's story, from their chance meeting in 1958 to the present day. In the unraveling of the tale of a single relationship and all of its possibilities, THE VERSIONS OF US explores the wide net that our lives cast as we move or are moved by purpose and chance. Covering love and hope, betrayal and loss, ambition and failure, the book offers an illuminating look at what makes us human. Through the innermost thoughts of Eva and Jim, Barnett explores the choices that we must make and the impact of those decisions in our own lives and the lives of those around us. From version to version, the novel becomes a meditation on how we change both willingly and reluctantly and the ways our relationships evolve as we move forward against time. Most of all, the book poses intriguing and thought-provoking questions: How might the course of our lives be affected if a single detail was changed? How much can we control and how much is determined by fate or accident? What versions of us are possible and how can we know which is preferable?

Questions and Discussion Points

1. The book opens with two scenes that take place in 1938. What do the two scenes share in common? How do they compare to the storylines between Eva and Jim that follow? What major themes of the novel are introduced in these opening sections?
2. In Version 2: Algonquin, New York, November 1963, Eva realizes that her life has not gone as she had imagined it would. How has her life failed to match up to her expectations? Where else are Eva's and Jim's expectations challenged or upended in the novel?
3. In Version 3: Sandworms, Suffolk, October 1966, Miriam tells Eva that she can tell that Eva is not happy in her marriage. What advice does Miriam give her daughter? Do you think it is good advice? Does Eva accept Miriam's advice or reject it?
4. In Version 3: Frost, Cornwall, October 1966, Jim says that "he is old enough to know happiness for what it is" (142). How does he believe happiness is defined and how does his idea of happiness in this chapter compare to other depictions of happiness throughout the book? Does the book seem to settle on any single definition of happiness? If so, how does the book suggest happiness can be attained?
5. In Version 3: Thirty, London, July 1971, David tells Eva that she should be writing and she replies, "It's always simpler for a man" (166). Do you agree with her? Why or why not? What do the other versions of the story suggest about gender and the workplace or gender and success?
6. Explore presentations of marriage and love in the novel. How are each defined and depicted? What does Sinclair learn about marriage in Version 1 as he cares for Vivian? Does the book define what a "good" marriage entails or what the best kind of love is?
7. What is the role of art in the book? Which of the characters are artists and why do they undertake their artistic pursuits? What purpose do they find in their art? What obstacles do they face as artists? How does their artwork or role as artist shape and inform their identity?
8. The title of the novel is taken from the name of a triptych painted by Jim. What is the subject of the triptych and why is it significant both to Jim and to those who view it? How might it serve as a major symbol within the novel?
9. Thinking about the various settings of the novel, how do the times and places depicted in the novel mirror or help to reveal major themes of the story?

10. In Version 3: Afterglow, Los Angeles, December 1977, what does Eva say that she realizes about motherhood? What does she believe makes the best mother and why? Do you agree with her? What do the other versions of the story seem to suggest?

11. Evaluate the parent-child relationships presented in the book. What do the various relationships share in common? What do they reveal about parenthood when considered collectively? How are the characters in the book shaped and influenced by their own childhoods? How do the relationships they shared with their own parents influence and inform the way that they ultimately choose to raise and interact with their children?

12. What are some of the examples of infidelity in the novel? What causes or motivates the various characters to stray from their partners? How do these infidelities or betrayals impact their lives and the lives of those they are unfaithful to? Are any of the characters rewarded for seeking their own happiness?

13. Discuss how the book creates a dialogue around fate and accident versus choice. How much control do the characters have over their own lives and how much is left to chance?

14. Look at the structure of the novel. Why do you think the author chose to set up the novel in three sections? What themes does this structure help to reveal or reinforce? How would your understanding of the novel be different if Barnett had implemented a different structure --- telling each story without division, for example?

15. The novel covers a large expanse of time and includes characters of several generations. Consider the similarities and differences between characters of different generations in the novel. How are Eva and Jim like their parents and how do they differ? What, if anything, remains consistent over the passage of time between generations? Does the novel suggest whether we are simply doomed to repeat the past, or does it suggest, rather, that there is room for change?

16. What kinds of loss are depicted in the book and how do the characters deal with these losses? Does the book offer any view of the best way to grieve or confront loss? Does anything positive seem to come from the characters' processes of grieving?

17. How do the three final chapters work together as a cohesive ending? What final message or messages --- or questions --- do they seem to impart when considered collectively? Do the last three chapters draw the various pieces of the book into a unified whole or present three contradictory conclusions?

Suggestions for Further Reading

Groff, Lauren. FATES AND FURIES

Oates, Joyce Carol. WE WERE THE MULVANEYS

Reid, Taylor Jenkins. MAYBE IN ANOTHER LIFE

Strout, Elizabeth. OLIVE KITTERIDGE

Tyler, Anne. BREATHING LESSONS

Weiner, Jennifer. WHO DO YOU LOVE

Atkinson, Kate. LIFE AFTER LIFE

Niffenegger, Audrey. THE TIME TRAVELER'S WIFE

Hawking, Stephen. A BRIEF HISTORY OF TIME

Author Bio

Laura Barnett is a writer, journalist and theater critic. She has been on the staff at the Guardian and the Daily Telegraph, and is now a freelance arts journalist and features writer working for the Guardian, the Observer and Time Out London, as well as several other national newspapers and magazines. THE VERSIONS OF US is her first novel.

Photo Credit: © Sarah Lee

---

The Versions of Us

by Laura Barnett

Publication Date: April 18, 2017

Genres: Fiction

Paperback: 432 pages

Publisher: Mariner Books

ISBN-10: 0544947274

ISBN-13: 9780544947276